

While I support the second amendment and have no issues with responsible citizens owning guns, I see no benefit to our country to allow anyone to purchase high-capacity ammunition rounds of more than ten rounds. This type of ammunition should only be in the hands of law enforcement officers and the military.

It is time for reasonable laws for guns ownership to be enacted. Guns should be sold only after a background check and should be registered.

Gun show exhibitors need to be held to the same standards as gun shops. Please listen to tax payers and not the gun lobbyists and the NRA.
